The body of a Beautiful Woman Faund Floating on the Cumberland gilver, and Tolk to Pieces by Buz-zards.

[From the Pastville, Tenn, Union, July 8.]

A most feightful, gloomy, and unexpected discovery was made by a fisherman while plying his avocation on the river, a short distance below the mouth of Richland Creek, near the farm of a Mrs. Bass, eight miles from Nushville, Tuesday afternoon. cance, he was horrified at behelding a spectucle which at once made his blood run cold. The object which not his vision was thefremains of what was more apparently a beautiful women, lying indeath, with her head partly out of the water. She was perfeetly nude. Fish swarned around her body by hundreds, and tonzands perched upon the exposed head. The birds had tramped the ground for twenty leet; around the corpse. They had plexed out the eyes, and cheeks until the ghoatly jaw bones of a once fair and animated face would't in build relief. The cars and an arm were gone, and few tressens of a Junuriant growth of hair had been le't upon her head. After he buzzards had been satiated with flesh, the fish had nibbled her neck almost to the bone, and had carried away the pleace of deeb which the ravezous blids had dropped into the water. Having tied her body around the breast and covered it oversa best he could, he harried to Nuchville for Coconer George W.
